We are authorized to announce

JUDGE FLEM D. SAMPSON

Of Barbourville, Kentucky

as a candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge of the 34th Judicial District of Kentucky, subject to the Republican Primary, to be held Feb. 4, 1911.

JUDGE SAMPSON FOR

CIRCUIT JUDGE.

The people throughout the county, and so far as we can learn, throughout the district, hail with delight the announcement of Judge Flem D. Sampson for the Circuit Judgeship of this the 34th Judicial District of Kentucky.

Judge Sampson is a lawyer of well known ability, and his fair dealings with his fellow man has won for him the confidence, esteem and respect of everyone, and now that they have an opportunity to honor him by elevating him to this exalted position, they stand ready and waiting to cast their votes for him.

Judge Sampson is of a generous hearted disposition and was never known to refuse to aid deserving ones when called upon, and his public spiritedness has caused him to contribute liberally to every enterprise that has come this way.

Both of our colleges have received a generous subscription from him, as well as every church in the town has been materially aided by his liberality.

Such men as Judge Sampson deserve recognition and when he is elected, as he doubtless will be, he will stand as high, so far as legal qualifications go, as any Judge in the State.

Knox is lining up solidly for Judge Sampson and is expecting Whitley to join with her in making his nomination unanimous.

Every little country village has an ambition to become a trade center and a boom city, with no special natural features or geographical advantages. Under such conditions what is most needed is some enterprise on the part of its local capitalists. They must make the first advance in the uncertain field of development. They must capitalize small factories and see that they are employed. When the local business is finally developed and proves to the world that they are successful, then outside enterprises will be sure to step in and enjoy your prosperity with you. Just like a fellow who finds a favorite fishing hole and catches fish, and all the other fishermen who see that he is catching will drop their hooks right by the side of the lucky fisherman. The business men of any town should stop talking and hoping for others to do something for the town. They should get together themselves and prove to the world that they have a money making town. No outsider will want to fish in our swimming hole until we prove that they can catch fish.

We have for years past noticed one very undesirable feature in the attendance of the public school in the higher grade, viz: There are, as a rule, many more girls attending than boys. Why is this? Where are the boys? They leave school, many of them, in their early or middle teens as soon as they are able to get a position as clerk in some store or office under the impression that they are wasting time by remaining in school longer. The average boy thinks that if he gets some business position that will enable him to earn a few dollars a month, and that looks toward his final occupation in life, while his classmate sticks to school three or four years longer, he has just so many years the start of his companion who remains in school. Now the real facts in the case are that the reverse of this is the truth. The boy who remains in school and acquires a thorough education lays a foundation that will surely, other things being equal, enable him to surpass his class mate, who left school three or four years earlier.

Try to make the atmosphere healthy. Fire all croakers, loafers and bums. Let your object be the welfare, growth and promotion of your town and its people. Speak well of public spirited men, and also be one of them yourself. Be honest with your fellow-men and just to your friends. —Richmond Climax.

Cheaper to Live

Someone who takes a rosy view of life, gets off the following:

"There are men who argue that living is high, but they might try dying. A live man gets shaved for ten cents but a dead one pays a dollar and never kicks. A good kersey overcoat cost $25, but a wooden one costs $100. A grave digger will plant potatoes for twenty cents an hour, but for planting you he gets four times as much. A carriage to the theatre costs $2, but one to the cemetery cost $5. A saloon keeper will fill your hide to bursting for 50 cents, but an embalmer gets $7.50 for the job. Come to think of it there are lots of things left to live for in this world despite the high prices and the contrary weather." —Ex.

MARRIAGE.

A game of chance in which the chances are about even. The man leads at first, but after leaving the altar he usually follows breathlessly in his wife's trail. The rules are very confusing. If a masked player holds you up some night at the end of a long gun, it is called "robbery" and entitles you to telephone the police; but if your wife holds you up for a much larger amount the next morning it is termed "diplomacy" and counts in her favor. In this, as in other games of life, wives are usually allowed more privileges than other outlaws.

The Lodge Beyond The Blue.

Is there Lodge room up in heaven.
Is there a master and brothers to?
Where the signs and grips are given,
In that land beyond the blue.

It is said, we know each other,
Tell me if you know its true;
That we will use the word brother,
In that land beyond the blue.

I think I hear the Angels singing,
Masons, Red Men, K. Ps. to;
I can hear their voices ringing,
In the land beyond the blue.

The day is coming, not far distant,
Let us all our vows renew;
So that we may join that meeting,
In the land beyond the blue.

There we will meet the Great Grand Master,
Wardens, Deacons, brothers, to;
Singing anthems everlasting,
In that land beyond the blue.

There we will see them from all Nations,
When the gates we have passed through;
Oh, the many million Masons,
In that land beyond the blue.

If we knew we would not meet there,
This world here we sure would rue;
But we know good Masons go there,
To that land beyond the blue.

Now we end the labor of the old year,
And begin upon the new;
Let's get ready for the Grand Lodge,
In that Lodge beyond the blue.

If we never meet again here,
Let us to each be kind and true,
If we expect to meet each other,
In the land beyond the blue.

Fraternally,

It is becoming quite a fad in Pendleton for the girls to go hunting with the young gentlemen. A tragically nearly occurred the other day over in the neighborhood of Lenoxburg. A young man shot at his sweetheart in a dense thicket because she looked like a deer to him. She returned the compliment because he resembled a rabbit — Falmouth Outlook.

First Christmas Observance.

Christmas gets its name from the mass celebrated in the early days of the Christian Church in honor of the birth of Christ, its first solemnization having been ordered by Pope Telesphorus. This was in or before the year 128, for in that year Pope Telesphorus died.

At first Christmas was what is known as a movable feast, just as Easter is now, and owing to misunderstandings was celebrated as late as April or May. In the fourth century an ecclesiastical investigation was ordered, and upon the authority of the tables of the censors in the Roman archives December 25th was agreed upon as the date of the Savior's nativity. Tradition fixed the hour of His birth at about midnight, and this led to the celebration of a midnight mass in all the churches, a second at dawn and a third in the later morning at ten o'clock.

Who Was There That You Knew?

In the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps you can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographers in the United States of that day. They were bought by the United States Government for $30.00; they were buried in the War Department for 33 years; they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from pillar to post for nearly 40 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Harcourt Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 11 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of a cup of tea. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

Improper Emblems and Devices.

In the Powell county local option case, where the drys won, the Court of Appeals reversed the case of Conley & Co. vs. Hardwick, and held that the election was void because improper emblems or devices were printed on the official ballots. The ballots under the head of "Yes" which was the dry column, contained an open book with the words "Holy Bible" under it. In the "No" column which was the wet column, there was a picture of a whiskey bottle with a glass beside it and a snake's head poking out of the bottle. The court says such things materially affected the election and are therefore to be condemned. The opinion says the proof showed that one old negro said, "I had ter vote under dat Bible fer if I hadn't de Lawd Almighty would er struck me dead." —Jessamine Journal.

Why does Great Britain buy its oatmeal of us?

Certainly it seems like carrying coals to Newcastle to speak of exporting oatmeal to Scotland and yet, every year the Quaker Oats Company sends hundreds of thousands of cases of Quaker Oats to Great Britain and Europe.

The reason is simple; while the English and Scotch have for centuries eaten oatmeal in quantities and with a regularity that has made them the most rugged physically, and active mentally of all people, the American has been eating oatmeal and trying all the time to improve the methods of manufacture so that he might get that desirable foreign trade.

How well he has succeeded would be seen at a glance at the export reports on Quaker Oats. This brand is without a rival; is packed in regular 10c packages, and is hermetically sealed tins for hot climates.
